

A Chronological Presentation of Tekumel, The Sidereal Universe, and The Majesty of The Empire of The Petal Throne

by

Shawn Bond

Author's Note: The reader will note that this chronology utilizes two dating periods, anno Domini (AD) and after Seal (AS). The calendar begins with the Christian calendar system of "anno Domini" for ease of the reader to gain a perspective of how the sequence of events that lead to Tekumel pertains to his or her own time (circa 1900's). The second calendar utilizes the Tsolyani calendar of "after Seal" which began upon the ascension of the first mythical Seal Emperor (it was felt that placing the historical perspective of Tekumel in terms of Tsolyani history would again provide a familiar frame of reference for the reader). It should also be noted that almost all of this material has been gleaned from the myriad sources of text written by Prof. MAR Barker (and a few others) over the years, and in no way should anyone construe that this humble author is taking any creative credit (though an occasional comment or suggested insight may have sneaked in here and there).

Current history "ends" with the civil war still raging (or perhaps simmering is a better word) in Tsolyanu, the Red Hats still holding Pan Chaka and Livyanu, and Salarvyani forces both raiding the Empire's eastern provinces and bickering amongst themselves. Additional details will be incorporated as more information comes in. My contacts in Tsolyanu (namely Tilekka hiVaishya of Jakalla and a few other adventurous "scholars") are rather busy at the moment, and I do not wish to take too much of their time. By all means, if anyone should have additional information to add below, please feel free to notify myself through the Blue Room or via e:mail (telepathy is unreliable and gives me an awful headache). Any corrections will also be gladly accepted.

The Known History

(Rev. 1)

2012-2013 AD -

"Western Civilization" and the nations of 21st century Terra are obliterated by the Atomic Armageddon.

prior to 60,000 AD -

Earth struggles out of the radioactive ashes and slowly rebuilds a technological civilization. Humankind again reaches for the stars and eventually encounters the Pe Choi, who gift the peoples of Earth with the Three Light Drive and many other wonderous devices, as well as introducing the fledgling interstellar species to a vast galactic community. Terrans are soon introduced to others; the Shen of Antares, the Ahoggya from Achernar, the Niniyal (Pygmy Folk) from Mirach, the Tinaliya from Algol, the Hlaka from Ensis, the Urunen from Betelgeuse, the Pachi Lei from Arcturus, the Heglethyal (Swamp Folk) from Unukalhai, the Hlutrgu from Algenubi, the Vleshgayal (Shunned Ones) from Regulus, the Mihalli from Dorsum, the Nyagga from Alhena, the Hokun from Markeb, the Chima from some unrecorded star system, the noisome tripod Popo of Beta Aquilae, the shaggy Umpleb from Delta Aquilae, and the insidious Bahk Muhk from Denebola. Still other species were found in the farther reaches of space, but their names and their empires have largely been forgotten.

early 60,000 AD -

Tekumel is discovered by explorers from Humanspace. Its sun, Sinistra in Nu Ophiuchi, is found amongst the trade routes of several stellar empires. Economic advantages for having a mercantile base at this location outway the cost of pacifying the hostile natives and terraforming the inhospitable planet.

60,000-60,110 AD -

Domination of Tekumel during the Dynasty of the Veritable Autocrator. The Autocrator's armies and fleets raze the indigenous Ssu and Hluss civilizations. Terraforming of the planet and extermination of 98% of the native life. Ssu, Hluss, and related sentient species relocated onto closely guarded preserves.

60,111-61,912 AD -

Tekumel is made into a pleasure planet and trading center for Humanspace and the other spacefaring alien empires. Human and alien masters stock private animal preserves and zoos. Mighty starships bring the wealth of many worlds to the jaded merchant-princes of Tekumel. "Men sing of Tekumel as home." Such peace and prosperity is said to last almost 50,000 years.

111,912 AD -

The Cataclysm hurls Tekumel into a starless pocket dimension by supposed hostile forces (the Pariah Dieties perhaps?). The once great civilization of Tekumel, the Joyous Light of the Golden Age, goes dim and is extinguished. The great culture is broken in only a few hundred years. Thus do sages refer to this sad era as "The Time of Darkness."

111,912-111,812 AD -

The same fate as Tekumel befalls 722 other worlds of Humanspace (it is unknown whether worlds in the empires of other alien species suffer a similar fate). It is unrecorded whether Earth falls to the ravages of the unknown enemy.

111,912-106,912 AD -

The space-age civilization of Tekumel has collapsed into barbarism from geologic upheavals and disruptions of essential supplies brought by starships. The machines begin to die. The Ssu and Hluss exult in the misfortune of their enemies and take back whatever they can. Local hoarders and warlords seize everything within their power. The Hlutrgu burst upon the coastal swamplands and are only forced back after a long series of brutal and bloody wars. The Hokun pretend to befriend mankind, war with them, enslave humanity and rule them as gods, and are eventually defeated by their slaves, forcing the Hokun to retreat to a great island in the southern seas. The Mihalli civilization in the east is destroyed by a great planetary bomb used by a neighboring human kingdom (who are also destroyed by the weapon). Such is "The Latter Times."

(106,912 AD approximate) -31,525 AS -

The ancient Llyan Empire (proto-Livyanu) founded by Llyan at the city of Tsamra. The sorcerers of Llyan discover the existence of nexus points, compound the texts of demonology and map the topography of the Planes Beyond. "Magic" (psychic powers of the mind) is refined from what was learned by the Great Ancients and the Lords of the Latter Times, and compilation of spells are made by the scientist-magicians of Llyan. Genetic templates for many guardian creatures and servants of mankind are fashioned using the still-functioning genetic-plasma machines of the bygone Age of Wonder. Fragmentary records indicate that worship of the Pariah Gods is widespread (The One Other, The One Who Is, and the Goddess of the Pale Bone - Ku'u Tep in the tongue of Llyan).

mid -26,000 AS -

The Three States of the Triangle (Urmish, Jakalla, and Thraya) arise in power.

-23,525 AS -

Contact with Vimuhla by Llyan scholars followed by rapid spread of worship of the Lord of Fire throughout the Llyan Empire. Lesser influence of Vimuhla in the Three States of the Triangle. The Llyan Empire begins to deteriorate from political stagnation and religious zeal for the Flame Lord. Nluss warbands (soon to be known as the Dragon Warriors) begin to migrate from their mountainous homelands, driven to plunder and conquest by the red-robed priests of Vimuhla.

beginning of -23,495 AS -

The Dragon Warriors from the lands of ancient Nlussa conquer the city-states of what will be Mu'ugalavya, riding mighty, flying "dragons" (aircars of the ancients) and pillaging the land.

-23,445 AS -

The Dragon Warriors destroy the remnants of Llyan's Empire. They proto-Nluss futilely war upon the Shen states to the South, with little success other than spilling much blood of both human and alien. Dragon Warrior hordes migrate East and Northeast.

-23,345 AS -

The Dragon Warriors conquer the coasts of what is now Yan Kor and wage wars with the Three States of the Triangle.

-23,265 AS -

The Three States of the Triangle fall and are pillaged by the Dragon Warriors.

-23,245 AS -

The Dragon Warriors march all the way through what is now Salarvya. They occasionally battle the Ahoggya (though the Dragon Warrior are loathe to enter the fetid swamplands of the aliens) and sea-faring Nom raiders.

-23,240 AS -

Gamulu of Fenul leads rebellion against the weak Nluss overlords in ancient Salarvya.

-23,235 AS -

Gamulu drives the Dragon Warriors out of western Salarvya. The empire of the Dragon Warriors fragments into thousands of clans, small states, and cities. Hordes of Ssu pour out from their refuges to make war upon humanity; their armies ravage Pechano - first capturing their long lost capital of Ssuganar and then pulling down Benesh (which never rises again) near the present city of Mechaneno. The Ssu Wars begin.

-23,235 to 23,210 AS -

Ssu expeditions strike northward into Chaigari and Kilalammu, threatening even the high aeries of the Hlaka. These beings make alliance with Gamulu and his people. Both sides rage back and forth for many years. This war is characterized by many campaigns with sporadic interludes. Eight of Gamulu's 14 sons fall in battle with the Foe of Man.

-23,210 AS -

Gamulu drives the Foe of Man back below Ssuyal, leaving fields choked with tattered gray bodies and slain human warriors. Gamulu holds a great victory celebration in the whispering ruins of old Ssuganar.

-23,200 AS -

Gamulu dies from a mysterious wasting disease contracted in Ssuganar (some say it is a curse laid upon him by the vengeful Ssu during his time in Ssuganar). The 12th son of Gamulu, Ho Etehlto, kills his remaining sibling rivals and is crowned as emperor, founding a dynasty later to be known as the Fisherman Kings, who commanded fleets of black ships that ranged up and down the coasts of Salarvya and proto-Tsolyanu. Ho Etehlto raids and conquers the region as far east as Peleis. He seizes the Dragon Warriors' strongholds on the islands of Ganga, Thayuri, and Vra, and his black ships besiege the city of Jakalla (though unable to take it). The Fisherman fleet crosses the straits to capture Haida Pakala from an unknown nonhuman race that then held it (Hokun?)

-23,200 to -23,000 AS -

Contact with the interdimensional being now called Ksarul during the 22nd king of Gamulu's dynasty. Religious persecution and strife against the emerging priesthood of Ksarul by Vimuhla priests. The religious strife provides impetus to bring about the beginnings of the Bednalljan Dynasty.

-23,000 AS -

Nayari of the Silken Thighs assassinates the governor of Purdanim and quickly consolidates political power using sex and violence. The First Imperium has begun under Nayari. The rest of the Lords of Change contacted by human scholars.

-22,990 AS -

The last of the Dragon Warrior kingdoms outside of Nlussa falls to Nayari's able generals.

-22,989 AS -

The last Fisherman King flees north from Nayari's legions, signaling the end of the Fisherman Kings Empire.

-22,988-86 AS -

Hlutrgu assault the Island of Thayuri but are turned back after hundreds of thousands of the vicious frog-beings are slain.

-22,986 AS -

Fasiltum conquers the Hlaka aeries.

-22,982 AS -

Nayari of the Silken Thighs is assassinated by the poisoned kiss of a lover (who dies himself).

-22,932 AS -

Nayari's son moves the capital of the First Imperium to ancient Jakalla.

-22,900 AS -

Jigresh, Tirtlen of Lord Sarku, commands the demon lords Tkel and Srukarum to fashion the Maze Temple of Jigresh as a place of steadfastness for the priesthoods of Sarku and Durritlemish.

-22,882 AS -

Capital of the First Imperium is moved by Nayari's grandson to the newly built city, Bey Su ("Soul of the World"). The construction of the Sakbe Roads is begun, linking the cities of the First Imperium.

-20,853 AS -

The priest Pavar is born.

-20,800 AS -

The crippled Pavar, priest of Enome (Ksarul) contacts the Grey Lord Tham (Thumis), and with the remaining Lords of Stability soon thereafter.

-20,763 AS -

Pavar dies in his sleep at the age of ninety. His disciples carry the new pantheon to the far corners of the First Imperium.

-20,700 AS -

Civil war spreads across the land between the new and old religions (the fruits of this civil war would establish the now regional strongholds of the Pantheon of Pavar in Tsolyanu). The Scrolls of Pavar are copied and spread across the continent by delegates of the temple of Nallal (Hnalla). The Emperor of the First Imperium and his glittering court watch with apprehension to growing civil unrest. Work begins to expand the ancient citadel of Evu Nithoru (Avanthar), a stronghold since before the Time of Darkness, into the fortress it is today.

-20,600 AS -

The Concordat is established between the temples of Change and Stability under Ghiyal Tranuo, High Priest of Nallal on Ganga and appointed successor to Pavar. Power shifts from Bey Su to Pavar's home island of Ganga when the Emperor, Meshkanuma Amessu III invites the High Priests of the Tlomitlanyal to Bey Su to advise him. The ancient capital of the First Imperium, time lost Purdanim, has begun to fall into ruin. The Emperor is made to swear never to worship the Pariah Gods. The cities of what is now Tsolyanu have now gone over to the pantheon of Pavar. The now lost art of perfume writing is perfected during the reign of Meshkanuma Amessu III. Scholars generally agree that this is the time when Engsvan hla Ganga (wrongly called the Kingdom of the Gods by many scholars) arises as a true political power.

-20,453 AS -

Emperor Balakanuma I assumes the throne after the death (some say by poison or magic) of Emperor Changgala. The emperor, a devotee of Kerek (Karakan) doubles the size of the realm, seizes Milumanaya, marches along the shores of the Northern Sea, and captures Hleker (Ke'er) from descendants of the Dragon Warriors and the Lorun tribes.

-20,163 AS -

Priestly advisors become the real masters of the realm at the Imperial Court of the First Imperium. The High Priest of Nallal wields as much, if not more, power as the Emperor. The affairs of government and the police were the province of Chokhar's clergy. The High Adept of Kerek had charge of the army, and trade and economic affairs were managed jointly by the temples of Evuen and Tham. The temple Vaomahl establishes its power in Fa'asal and amongst the clans in the south-western city of Thamis.

-19,963 AS -

Tirisan Jakona, Patriarch of Ba'alk, revitalizes the administration of Engsvan hla Ganga.

-19,915 AS -

The last Emperor of the Bednalljan Empire, Tarishande XIII, is spirited away from Bey Su by his remaining loyal servants. This band of political refugees flee from the pursuing contingent of Ganga soldiers across the Northern Sea to beyond the North Pole. The Empire of Ganga officially begins. The Priestkings continue to add to the network of Sakbe-roads and fortify these walls with many watch-towers and keeps, and practice the Bednalljan custom of Pashatl. The temples establish the practice of using networks of telepaths to deliver messages. Also during this era, the great scholar Waba of Ka Kokoth writes his greatest work, "The Periplus of Farther Voyaging."

-19,763 AS -

The legions of the Priestkings lay siege to Shoshche (Ch'ochi) in Mu'aghatl. Though the siege lasts over 20 years, the Empire of Ganga cannot invest the ancient pre-Cataclysm military base.

-19,885 AS -

Legend tells of a tall, sun-blackened old man who appeared in Ja'akath, speaking the "high" speech and acting in the manners of the old court of the Bednalljan Emperors. What occurs to this stranger is lost to history.

-19,551 AS -

The proud Veridh clan closes the gates of Fa'asal and refuses to send taxes or troops to Ganga. The Priestking Ssirandar I crossed the Vales of Ninar (now the Desert of Eyagi) and laid siege to Fa'asal, destroying its water supply and canals to force the rebelling city to capitulate. The great architect Pirunddayu builds the great shrine to Ba'alk in Fa'asal.

-19,509 AS -

Foundation of the first hereditary Engsvanyali dynasty by Priestking Ssirandar I. Beginning of the First Epoch.

-19,413 AS -

Marya, the greatest Engsvanyali sculptor, creates his masterpiece, "Woman of Tsamra." The artist employed one Nia Alel, a Livyani serving maid, as the model for his renowned work. He later produces another masterpiece titled, "Thumis Ascending to the Sun" (which is currently a prized possession of the Governor of Tumissa).

-19,315 AS -

Priestking Bashdis Mssa II begins the tradition of the keeping of records in "The Great Book of the Priestkings" (which were closely guarded at Ganga).

-19,262 AS -

The Priestking Dharumesh Mssa I founds the great Library at Tumissa. This edifice is also to include an academy of devices and sciences (no trace of it exists today).

-19,220 to -19,154 AS -

Sometime during the reign of Ssirandar IV, the Engsvanyali epic poem, "The Lament to the Wheel of Black," is translated from Bednalljan or some older text.

-19,154 to 19,097 AS -

Priestking Ssirandar V, "The Victorious over the Foes of Humankind" conquers Pechano and much of the east. Priestesses of the goddess Shiringgayi help the Priestking's generals by using weapons of the great Ancients to subdue the worshippers of Hichegeth Qurgha (Black Qarqal) in the City of Liu-Sanmu.

-19,097 AS -

The practice of electing a Priestking via the priestly council of Ganga is abandoned in favor of hereditary succession. The posts of High Priest and Adept are also passed on to offspring in many of the temples. Membership on the subsequent "advisory" council to the Priestkings is based upon ancestry, prestige, favors, and money.

-19,097 to 19,094 AS -

Priestking Ssirandar VI builds the "City of the Nine Walls" (now lost).

-19,094 AS -

Priestking Bashdis Mssa III, "The Great," establishes the "Circles" system of ranking amongst the priesthoods. This ruler also restores ancient Bednalljan titles and fiefs to favored subjects.

-19,040 AS -

Priestking Dharumesh Mssa II is poisoned by his own chamberlains who discover his "ignobilities."

-19,040 AS -

Priestqueen Choleyn Mssa I, the First Engsvanyali Queen. Devotee of Avante and patron of agriculture. The Priestqueen sets scholars to the task of increasing the bounty of the Empire's lands through magic (the temple of Avante retains some of these spells, but much is now lost).

-19,028 AS -

Priestqueen Choleyn Mssa II, daughter of Choleyn Mssa I. Worshipper of Dilinala, with 237 female lovers from all the social classes.

-18,963 AS -

Priestking Nemandu I, cousin of Choleyn Mssa II and founder of a new line.

-18,663 (approx.) AS -

The temples of Sarku, Gruganu, and Vimuhla revolt against the Priestkings. A treaty between Ganga and the City of Sarku grants most of the autonomy of Sarku's temple in that city.

-18,930 AS -

Plague of the White Hand ravages the "Known World" under the reign of Priestking Bashdis Mssa IV. Many regions depopulated and whole cities, such as Urmish, decimated, which are not to be resettled for nearly a century.

-18,925 AS -

Priestking Arkhuam Mssa dies of a horrible plague that is later named after him.

-18,925 to 18,912 AS -

A gap appears in the First Epoch where there are no ruling Priestkings. The cause is not known to contemporary scholars.

-18,912 AS -

Priestking Bashdis Mssa V restores government (?), and adds to the number of Sakbe-roads and fortresses.

-18,858 AS -

Priestking Nemandu II, already an old man, rules for 36 years living only on bread and Hmelu-milk. He was isolated by his advisors from the outside world.

-18,784 AS -

The Temple of Sarku in Jakalla is sold to an enterprising merchant who had it tore down so that he might trade the stone for Chlen-hides and a shipment of wine. Priestking Nemandu III, who sold the temple, promptly disappears from his court (nothing is mentioned of the fate of the merchant).

-18,784 AS -

Priestking Dharumesh Mssa III reforms the currency and develops the use of "writs" that could be cashed in distant cities (even in the markets of other nations).

-18,746 AS -

Priestking Bashdis Mssa is "crushed by a demon."

-18,746 AS -

Priestking Dharumesh Mssa IV, "The Singer of Gentle Songs." This Priestking will develop "picture books" using Other-Planar sorcery to animate the pictures in the books. He will also marry a Saa Allaqiyani woman, Misa Tanio, who will be Queen.

-18,736 AS -

Priestking Ssirandar VII, "He Who Lived too Long," seizes power after Dharumesh "passes away" (?). This ruler executes Priestqueen Misa Tanio as a "traitoress."

-18, 692 to -18,667 AS -

Revolution, civil war, and the destruction of temples during the reign of Priestking Bashdis Mssa VII. This Priestking falls to Arkhuan Milende, "He Who Hates the Gods." The Legion of the Seekers of Indelible Victory is sent east, through Mihallu, into the barren Plains of Glass, where it disappears.

-18,667 to -18,664 AS -

A gap in Engsvanyali records appears here. It is assumed that civil war still rocks the "Empire of the Gods" while Arkhuan Milende rages across the lands.

-18,664 AS -

Priestking Nemandu IV, a general from another lineage, restores the Empire. He ousts "greedy priests" and favors the army in all things.

-18,602 AS -

Priestking Kakkonen Chre, a usurper from Jakalla, seizes Ganga with a fleet of pirate ships.

-18,590 AS -

Ssirandar VIII, cousin of the murdered Priestking Bashdis Mssa VII, returns from a "voyage around the world" to retake Ganga and slay the usurper.

-18,573 to -18,531 AS -

Priestking Bashdis Mssa VIII, "The Builder of Tombs" and "Restorer of Catacombs," pours much of the Empire's treasury into massive tomb building projects. The Necropolises built by this Priestking are never to be exceeded in opulence and grandeur in the history of the world.

-18,531 AS -

Priestking Dharumesh Mssa VI devises the "Twenty-Four Forms" of formal dress worn at affairs of state (still to be used, more or less changed, during the Tsolyanu Imperium era).

-18,399 AS -

Tettukanu Dlee I, "The Slaughterer of Children," seizes power, isolating the current Priestking in Bey Su by seiging the city with soldiers. The rebel kills Bashdis Mssa IX in battle on the walls of Bey Su on -18,384 AS. Most of the emperor's family are executed after Bey Su falls (their heads hacked off by the rebel himself or thrown from the palace towers).

-18,394 AS -

Bashdis Mssa X, the twelve year-old child of Bashdis Mssa IX, disappears from Bey Su after its fall to Tettukanu Dlee I. Scholars think that the child was abducted by priests of the One Other (perhaps to use him against Tettukanu Dlee I).

[Civil war and the end of the First Epoch]

-18,394 to -15,894 AS

This time period is referred to as the Second Epoch. This era is marked by many semi-autonomous states that are called "Engsvanyali," by historians. Following the disappearance of Bashdis Mssa X, the clergy of several temples warred against the temples of the Pariah Gods, and then rose up against Ganga itself (it is lost to history as to which temples turned against the Empire - this historian feels that most of the antagonists were those of the temples of Change). This religious war added to the ongoing secular civil war. The Vriddi declared Fasiltum independent; Teshengtu Tlekolmu "the Hammer of the West" did likewise in Tumissa; the northern regions of what is now Yan Kor slipped away; Salarvya, Mihallu, and the east also left the Empire. On another note, the Tsolei Archipelago and the southern regions of cold, northern Nluss was conquered by one of the fragmented Engsvanyali Empire. Despite the political chaos of the Second Epoch, much was accomplished in the arts, military knowledge, and the sciences. The emergence of local dialects of the Engsvanyali language is noted. The "Hero of the Age" drives out the servants of the Pariah Deities into the Outer Darkness.

The Priestking Hemanche Farkhenu solidifies the much shrunken Engsvanyali Empire.

-15,873 AS -

Girandu I, son of Hemanche Farkhenu, ushers in the Third Epoch. This Priestking conquers the splinter dynasties. The Hlutrgru are driven back into the jungles of Layodu and the Shikel Swamps. The Priestking rewards each soldier of the Legion of the Joyful Clan of the Noble Vrayani with slingstones of rubies and diamonds.

-14,871 AS -

The ancient priestly Council is summoned into session after the last Girandu passes without issue or relative for the throne. The Rebellion of the Right Hand ensues between the candidates for the throne of the Empire. Chayetlesa Tlaesu, a priestess of Ksarul, remains as the lone survivor of the rebellion. She is declared the Priestqueen, and "The Long Peace" is ushered in.

-14,866 to -14,844 AS -

Priestking Menkoru I reconquers Salarvya and Saa Allaqi; establishes trade with the Naqsai of the Southern Continent; and sends emissaries into Mihallu and the eastern regions of Salarvya.

-14,844 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Girandu XV. This Priestking will write a treatise on economics and develop the workings of business throughout the Empire.

-14,775 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Menkoru II. Building of the Great Hall of the Priestkings on Ganga Isle. The court of Menkoru II is said to be the most opulent in history.

-14,739 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Menkoru III. The practice of using sorcery to prolong the life of an emperor is declared illegal following the efforts of this emperor to extend his life. More Sakbe-roads are built, and the mighty fortress of Ngala near modern Jakalla is strengthened. Ports and harbors are built around the (now extinct) Sea of Milumanaya. Thousands of monuments and stela are placed along the borders of the Empire.

-14,442 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Atkolum I. The Empire wars against the Shen but eventually make peace. The Temple of the Goddess of the Pale Bone is destroyed near what is now Pelesar. The shrines of the Gods on Ganga is restored to "proper grandeur."

-14,433 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Menkoru IV. The formal etiquette of the imperial court reaches new heights of complexity. New titles, pageantry, and innovations in costume and manners are developed.

[5 years pass between the reigns of Menkoru IV and Chayetlesa II. The reason for this gap is not known.]

-14,387 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Chayetlesa II.

-14,363 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Atkolum II. A corps of secret police and a system of informants are developed. The Tolek Kana Pits are refurbished.

-14,243 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Girandu XVI.

-14,207 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Chayetlesa IV. Schools and academies are established within the temples. Orphanages are built and women's causes are advanced. Hospitals and facilities for the mentally ill are developed by the Chief Minister (a priest of Ketengku).

-14,197 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Alineya I.

-14,187 to 13,937 AS -

Reign of the Inept Emperors. This period of Engsvanyali history is marked by rulership passing between 16 inept and utterly mundane emperors of no mentionable worth.

[Here follows a gap of about a 1,000 years before historians again put pen to paper to chronicle the history of the Empire. The Chamberlain of the Empire, the Pe Choi Ntes Ktik, rules the Empire in all but name from the Halls of Eternal Glory near the end of this period.]

-12,950 AS -

Meluende Ssa, first of the Chalchai Dynasty, seizes the Halls of Eternal Glory from the Pe Choi Ntes Ktik using troops from the Legion of Serqu, Sword of the Empire and many loyal generals (history does not record what became of Nts Ktik).

-12,942 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Ssesmuga I. Suppression of many small revolts and intrigues throughout the Empire. The Stela of Scarlet Glory is erected at Navai Village near Tumissa, which records the glories of the Legion of the Givers of Sorrow.

-12,909 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Ssesmuga II.

-12,907 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Wiyul Basu. This Priestqueen was a concubine from Nmartusha who seized the throne with the aid of her five lovers. She was torn to bits by an angry mob when she attempted to introduce a state religion based on the Pariah Gods.

-12,900 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Neshkolu I.

-12,866 to -12,847 AS -

[Interregnum. The Empire was ruled by a coalition of High Priests from the temples of Vimuhla, Karakan, and Hrsh. This coalition wars with the followers of the One Other.]

-12,857 AS -

The great earthquake, "Harbringer of Worse to Come," destroys Urmish and Katalal. Thousands perish.

-12,828 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Tratikante I. The "Many-Hue Garden" is founded at Ganga. So beloved by her subjects and courtiers, this empress was revived in spite of the ancient prohibition against such magic. Each of the chief ministers is appointed Kelem ("Archon") of one of the seven segments of the Garden.

-12,694 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Tratikante II. Prosperity of the Empire under the Viceroys of the South.

-12,693 AS -

Ascension of Priestqueen Tratikante III, who dies soon after birth. Viceroys of the South begin a long internecine quarrel.

-12,693 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Ssesmuga III. Expeditions are sent to find the Unstraightened City, the Isle of Eyes, and to the Southern Continent. Some return, bearing many items which are added to the museum of curios in the High Chancery of Avanthar.

-12,648 AS -

Ascension of Priestking Ssesmuga IV. Ganga reaches its height in glory. An invasion of Livyanu fails because of that nation's powerful sorcery. The "Great Compendium of All Knowledge" is compiled by a committee of scholars at Ganga, as well as many other tomes.

-12,590 AS-

Ascension of Priestqueen Tratikante IV.

-12,587 AS -

Rivalries between the Viceroys of the Many-Hued Garden erupt into violence. The Flower Wars begin.

-12,586 AS-

Priestqueen Tratikante IV is assassinated by the troops of Lord Amukanatl Vriddi, the Archon of the Red.

-12,585 AS-

Ascension of Priestking Ssesmuga V. This Priestking disappears (he is probably arrested and slain).

-12,581 AS-

Yaheshu Sarel of Tsuru, priest of Thumis, completes the basic ethical principles based on the concepts of "nobility" and "ignobility."

-12,561 AS-

The Flower Wars end with victory of Archon Amukanatl Vriddi. The victorious Archon takes residence in the Palace of the Priestkings on Ganga Isle. The only regions still under Engsvanyali domain at that time are Mu'ugalavya, Tsolyanu, and Mihallu localities. Beginning of the Last Epoch.

-12,534 AS-

2356 AS -

Yan Kor issues a Declaration of War against the empire of Tsolyanu. Yan Kor Gureks invade borders of the Seal, advancing around the Atkolel Heights into Tsolyanu.

2357 AS -

General Kettukal is recalled from disgrace to halt the Yan Koryani advance at the Battle of Atkolel Heights. Prince Eselne joins the general at the Western Front, based at Khirgar. The Military Party unites behind the two figures.

2358 AS -

Legion of Potent Destiny reactivated. Surundano is revealed by the Temple of Thumis. Mirusiya is revealed by the Vriddi Clan in Fasilum, breaking Prince Eselne's hold over the Military Party as Vimuhla worshippers flock to support the new prince. The war on the Western Front begins to bog down into a strategic stalemate.

2360 AS -

Prince Mirusiya, with the hesitant support of the Military Party, advocates a campaign in the east to cut off Baron Ald's allies, Milumanaya and Saa Allaqi. He rightly determines that a two-front war, which Tsolyanu can wage, will force Yan Kor to surrender. Priest Harsan activates the Man of Gold and closes Tekumel from The Goddess of the Pale Bone.

2361 AS -

(East) The Eastern Campaign, under Prince Mirusiya and Lord Kaikama, begins at Thri'il. Many powerful figures dedicated to the gods of Change and of Stability, dubbed "New Men," join the Prince (Lord Kaikama, General Heketh of Purdimal, Lord Kadawere, etc.) The eastern army advances through the Pass of Skulls and takes the Fortress of Skulls. The Yan Koryani general, the Lady Deq Dimani (one of Yan Kor's best generals and a lover of the Baron), feels that the fortresses in southern Milumanaya can slow a Tsolyani advance in time to gather more reinforcements. Prince Mirusiya attempts to conquer the desert state of Milumanaya. Tsolyani advances catch the Yan Koryani field army unprepared at the Battle of the Hill of the Stone Serudla (leaving the Tsolyani in control of the field but badly bloodied). Ahriam Basram replaces Lord Kaikama as the supreme field commander. The Tsolyani pursue Deq Dimani and her retreating Yan Koryani forces. The Lady deals a check on the Tsolyani advance at the Battle for the town of Mar, allowing the Yan Kor to regroup. The two armies settle down to reorganize around Mar. Deq Dimani leads a night attack on the Tsolyani defenders in the Second Battle of Mar. The attempt fails and cumulates in the Third Battle of Mar and destruction of the eastern Yan Kor army when Tsolyani flying columns led by Karin Missum take them in the rear. Fall of the caravan city of Sunraya and the death of Firaz the Elder, all by a ruse of Ahriam Basram's personal physician, the Livyani archmage Eloea. Capture of the Fortress Ninu'ur to the Legion of the Storm of Fire. Fall of Pu'er to the legions of the Seal of the Worm and the Scales of Brown, who break the Concordant by using undead soldiers. Prince Mirusiya commands the offending general impaled and demoralizes Sarku troops on the Eastern Front following testimony of several Flame soldiers.

(West) The Tsolyani Western army (under by Prince Eselne) takes the Atkolel Heights. First General Kettukal takes the town of Akarsha in the bloodiest siege of the war. Lightning invasion of Pijena by seizing the town of Kai and blockade of Yan Kor garrison at Pijnar.

(East) Tsolyani troops control southern and eastern Milumaniya. Prince Mirusiya splits the eastern invasion force in Sa'a Allaqi. Death of Senior General Kadarsha hiTlekolmu of the Legion of the Searing Flame, commandant of the eastern armies under Prince Mirusiya at the Milumananyani village of Kankara while defending his Prince from a magical attack. Karim Missum is made Kerdudalikoi and given command of the Legion of Red Devastation. The Kerdudalikoi Ketkollel is made the governor of the new Tsolyani province of Milumaniya with the Kerdu Kambe hiMorusai (new commander of the Legion of Searing Flame) serving as his military advisor. Battle of the town of Anohl with the defeat of the Tsolyani army. General Karin Missum razes the city of Grai and Kru Sekka to bring Saa Allaqi to its knees (this causes the Ssao to break negotiations of peace with Avanthar and to recall his daughter, Princess Vrisa Vishetru, by sending her brother Mridan Vishetru to reclaim her). Kambe accepts command of the field forces when Karin Missum is recalled to Avanthar to deal with problems growing in the west. Kerdu Kutume of the Legion of the Storm of Fire pacifies the rear areas of Milumaniya.

(West) Prince Eselne is injured in a skirmish at Aqesha, forcing the Tsolyani army to encamp in Kai. A Yan Kor treaty with Mu'ugalavya grants western Pijena to the Red Hats in exchange for military aide in surrounding Kai and sieging it.

2363 AS -

Kambe, “the Wall Walker,” leads Tsolyani soldiers in a siege of Tleku Miriya. Deq Dimani is replaced as field commander by her brother, who is later killed without mercy by Kambe in hand-to-hand combat. The eastern Tsolyani army occupies Tleku Miriya. Kerdu Kambe is made governor of Tleku Miriya.

2364 AS -

Death of Emperor Hirkane Tlakotani (now suspected of being murdered by his son, Prince Dhich'une, possibly with the aid of He'esa). Ascension of Emperor Dhich'une Tlakotani “Eternal Splendor,” during the intercalary days after the Kolumejalim (which is held in one day). Prince Mridobu and Lord Muresh hiQolyelmu, Head of the Intelligence Arm of the Omnipotent Azure Legion, disappear from Avanthar. Units of troops loyal to Lord Sarku are regrouped near Thri'il, Aukesha, Sunraya, City of Sarku, and Avanthar. Vridekka hiTlelsu takes over the Intelligence Arm of the Omnipotent Azure Legion. Usenanu, Bey Su, and other midland cities are ostensibly under the Emperor's control. Jakalla and Sokatis and the cities of the south-east only pay lip service to the new emperor. Alliance made with Yan Kor, as the Emperor appoints Baron Ald to the post of First General of the Empire. Rebellions in Tsolyanu are ruthlessly suppressed by the First General. General Ald garrisons Thri'il to seal Mirusiyá's army off in the north. Deq Dimani is sent to retake Sunraya and isolate the Tsolyani armies. The Lady Deq Dimani manages to retake Sunraya but can not take the citadel. Lord Fu Shi'i uses his Weapon Without Answer to trap Prince Mirusiyá and the Eastern army in an other-planar shadow of Tleku Miriya. Kambe controls all forces north of Sunraya. He negotiates with the "king" of Milumanaya and the Mu'ugalavyani general Mi'itlanesh. Kutume commands the field forces in the south.

(East) Defeat of General Kanmbe at Dlakar while the general tries to relieve his Prince. Mirusiyá and the remnants of the Eastern army are freed from Tleku Miriya by the actions of heros. Karin Missum reduces Tleku Miriya. Mirusiyá marches south. Victory of Prince Mirusiyá's army against Sa'a Allaqiyaní, Yan Kor, and Tsolyani units at the second Battle of the town of Dlakar (where the Weapon Without Answer was temporarily disabled by magic). Defeat of the Eastern army at the Battle of the Town of Arver and the Prince's flight south-west through the mountains to Fasilum.

(West) Prince Eselne's army breaks through the siege of Kai and regroups at Akarsha. The Western army force marches back to Chene Ho. Battle at the Fortress of Ti'Gurue with victory to the Prince.

2364 AS -

Prince Mirusiyá proclaims his ascendancy to the Petal Throne and weds a newly revealed Lady Elara hiVridi. The city of Fasilum declares itself an independent state under the Prince until such time as the prince takes the Petal Throne as Emperor. Prince Eselne is slain by Lady Sitlaya hiHehesha at Paya Gupa, forcing soldiers loyal to the Prince to travel the underground tubeway car, defeating Sarku assassins, to retrieve Badragu Ejel hiKaraktu who can bring the Prince back to life.

2364 AS (early) -

Growing Mu'ugalavya incursions into the Chakan Provinces turn into an invasion of said provinces. Salarvyani raiders enter the Gilraya Forests. Tsolyanu and Yan Kor combine forces to oppose Mu'ugalavyu aggression in the west. A Mu'ugalavyani army besieges Paya Gupa; the Red Hats march before the walls of Tumissa, from up lines, and then break formation to retreat; brief battle surrounding Chene Ho.

summer 2364-2365 AS -

Salarvyani forces conquer Ru and Fenul and invade the Gilraya forests. Squabbling amongst Salarvyani commanders impedes attempts to take Thraya or Jaikalor. Eselne returns with the Western army to Paya Gupa, forcing the Mu'ugalavyani to break the siege of Paya Gupa and withdraw back to Pan Chaka.

2365 AS -

Dhich'une turns on Ald. Yan Koryani soldiers defeat the Tsolyani garrison in the streets of Bey Su, sack the temple of Sarku, and impale the Governor of Bey Su and his sister. Prince Taksuru, an Imperial Heir, is revealed in Bey Su. Baron Ald swears allegiance to Taksuru. Prince Mridobu reveals himself and joins the alliance with Taksuru and Ald.

2365 AS (late summer) -

The invading Livyani army encounters the False Plague in Tsolei and flee, bringing the plague to Livyanu.

2365 AS (late autumn) -

Fighting between Sarku loyalists and other factions in Bey Su. The “Disposer of Meku” destroys the local temples of Lords Sarku and Hru’u in his city. Many cities brought under control of O. A. L. garrisons loyal to the Worm Prince.

2366 AS (autumn) -

Prince Rereshqala quells food riots in Jakalla and then calls for a new Kolumejalim, though still claiming reluctance to take the Petal Throne. Ma’in joins Rereshqala in his estate in Jakalla. Mirusiya remains within the walls of Fasilitum with his love Elara hiVridi while undead besiege the rebellious desert city (though the Prince did sneak into Bey Su to consult with Taksuru and then return unharmed). Eselne leads an army toward Bey Su, bringing Hauma and Purdimal under hand. “Wild” Pe Choi tribes throw off the yoke of Mu’ugalavyani and Tsolyani rule. Baron Ald returns to Yan Kor to put down revolts. Pijena and Saa Allaqi abandon their alliance with Yan Kor. The False Plague ravages Livyanu. Ssu expeditions sighted in Chaigari. Jaikalor, Sokatis, and Hekellu are hard pressed to defend against Salarvyani forces. Mu’ugalavyani soldiers hold Butrus.

2366 AS (winter) -

Eselne commands the western borders of the Empire. Taksuru reigns in Bey Su. Rereshqala crushes the remnants of an invading force of Sarku soldiers who terrorized Jakalla and caused many citizens to flee. Mirusiya remains defiantly ensconced within Fasilitum but discovers that Elara hiVridi was an illusion. The Livyani abandon many of their cities ravaged by the False Plague. Mmatugual Shen begin incursions into Livyani as they flee from Shenyu advances. Mu’ugalavyani raid south into Livyanu. Salarvyani soldiers command the Gilraya Forests. Fenul becomes Tsolyani again, but the Governor only rules because the Salarvyani can’t be bothered to retake the city. Wild Pe Choi drive off Mu’ugalavyani and crush the Tsolyani Ito clan (who were still recovering from Mu’ugalavyani brutality). The Pachi Lei are ethnically cleansed from Pan Chaka by Mu’ugalavyani garrisons. Those that have not been exterminated or fled remain in the deep forests, starving to death.

2367 AS -

Eselne leaves Paya Gupa at the head of his army and takes Mrelu and Purdimal, but is halted at Usenanu by forces loyal to Rereshqala. Mirusiya invades Avanthar through secret tunnels, but is repulsed by undead and monsters of the Underworlds and is forced to group near Thri’il. Taksuru rules Bey Su and holds up to 100 tsan west (near Usenanu) and over to Fasilitum. The Red Clans holds Tumissa as an independent kingdom and its warriors fight off Mu’ugalavyani incursions.
